POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Giants are the World's Champions. The Giants copped the flag today when they defeated the Yankees by the score of 1 to 0.

The game was bitterly contested throughout and was as crisp and snappy as the stiff autumn breeze, which chilled the cheeks of the fans as they sat in the stands.

Twice in the early stages of the series Hoyt drove the Giants back and he earned the glory of pitching the deciding game today but failed to repeat. Hoyt, however, does not retire in disgrace as he allowed but six hits and held the Giants scoreless for eight consecutive innings. He worked like a veteran.

Bancroft scored the winning run for the Giants today. In the ninth "Babe" Ruth was brought from the bench and used as a pinch hitter for Pipp. The immortal "Babe" failed. The side was retired.

Today saw the smallest crowd of the series. The fans were estimated to number 25,000. Many were kept from the game by the cold. This is the first time since 1905 that the championship has come to New York. In that year "Matty" established the wonderful record of pitching three straight victories, all by the shut-out route.

Nehf, pitched wonderful ball and blanked the Yankees for nine scoreless innings.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Giants were sitting on top of the world today for the first time since the world's series started.

Everybody was ready for the eighth game with the possible exception of Miller Huggins, who craves another day of rest that his pitchers may have a chance to come back. The weather was crisp and clear, however, and the stage was all set for carrying on the feud.

Giants and Giant fans expected to see the series concluded by nightfall despite the fact that the Yankees were desperate and sure to go in fighting like wildcats to square things with the national league champions.

Artie Nehf, McGraw's slender southpaw was ready to face the Huggens for the third time and eager for battle. Nehf has pitched and lost two games to the Yanks who had young Waite Hoyt in the box against him on each occasion.

Nehf's decisions were heart breakers, despite the fact that Hoyt pitched wonderful ball. In these two games the Giant southpaw allowed the Yanks a total of only nine hits against twelve made off Hoyt by the McGraw men. The breaks were against Artie. That was all.

Today, with Hoyt, slated to come back for the Yankees, Nehf was out for "revenge" and the betting among the grandstand managers favored his chances of getting it.

Nation Mourns Death of Noted Penn'a Senator—Knox

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The national capital was in mourning today for Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania.

The wheels of government in Washington slowed down as a mark of respect to the memory of Senator Philander C. Knox whose sudden and unexpected death last night cast a gloom over the capital. Then senate met at 11 a. m. and adjourned until 11 a. m. Friday out of respect to the distinguished Pennsylvanian. A number of important hearings, scheduled to go on today, were postponed.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the president and Mrs. Harding went to the Knox residence in K street to personally express to Mrs. Knox and the family their sorrow at the death of the senator.

Tentative funeral arrangements were made today by members of the Knox family. It was planned to hold funeral services for the distinguished Pennsylvanian here tomorrow at St. Johns Episcopal church, with mem-

Elkton Parson Once Had Church Here

Rev. Daniel Lockerbie Headed
Newportville Union
Church in 1916

SAYS THAT HE QUIT

Residents of the Newportville and Mechanicsville sections of Bucks County were surprised to learn today that the Rev. Daniel F. Lockerbie, who has installed himself as a "marrying parson" in Elkton, Md., is the evangelist who formerly conducted the Newportville Union Church, Mechanicsville chapel and the religious services at the Byberry Home for Indigent in Lower Bucks County. He was a frequent visitor in Bristol and has friends here.

The Courier today asked the Rev. Lockerbie if he was the man formerly stationed in this section and had charge of these services. He stated that he was. "About five years ago I was located at Newportville church," he said. "It was supposed to be a union church but the various denominations got into a row among themselves, so I quit."

Those who were active in the church say that just the opposite is true. "He disorganized and broke up our church," is their statement. "I am a free lance. I was a Lincoln Republican but in 1900 campaigned for Bryan."

Rev. Lockerbie, 82 years old, veteran of the Civil War, formerly of 2413 North Nineteenth street, Philadelphia, is the newest arrival in the marriage market. He began operations in Elkton last Monday. Today, announcing that he had nothing whatever to conceal, he took time between ceremonies to explain all about his purpose, his system and his record to everybody who wanted to know.

Incidentally he announced that no church can fire him. For ten years ago Rev. Mr. Lockerbie, tired of the narrowness of sectarianism, as he put it, and got waivers from the Philadelphia Presbytery with his ordination papers intact. Since then he has been an "apostolic evangelist," or, to use his own words, "a free lance."

"They can't unfrock me, or drive me out of the church," said the clergyman today with a chuckle that shook him fore and aft. "I took myself out ten years ago, and I have the certificate of the secretary to prove it. According to the discipline of the Presbyterian church a minister may be excommunicated for but two things, immorality or preaching heresy. My record shows that I have been among the leaders of orthodoxy."

Twenty Injured

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Twenty men who were taking part in a gigantic unemployment demonstration and two policemen were wounded in a pitched battle in Cambridge Circus this afternoon. The police charged the crowd with batons when an attempt was made to march through Trafalgar Square. Earlier in the day communists had attempted to march upon Premier Lloyd George's residence.

To Hold Last Two Military Funerals Here on Sunday

Bodies of Eugene Watkins and Russell T. Delker to be Buried With Full Military Honors
By Bracken Post.--Request Flag Display.

What are expected to be the last military funerals for deceased World's War Veterans of Bristol will be held Sunday afternoon under the direction of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion. At these services the bodies of Eugene G. Watkins, the only Bristol man to receive the Distinguished Service Cross, and Russell T. Delker will be held. The Watkins funeral will be held in St. James Episcopal church while that of Russell T. Delker will be held at the home of his parents, 561 Swain street. Both bodies will be buried in the Bristol cemetery. These will be the first funerals at which the caisson recently purchased by the Bracken Post will be used.

Franklin Gilkeson, Commander of the Bracken Post, issued an appeal today to every ex-service man to turn out for these two funerals on Sunday. "Members of the Legion or not and whether or not they have uniforms," said Mr. Gilkeson, "we want them to attend these funerals."

"The men will meet at the Legion rooms, Mill and Cedar streets, at 12 o'clock noon. They will leave for the Watkins' services promptly at 12.30." The services will be held in St. James Episcopal Church at one o'clock.

Private Watkins was a member of Co. K, 315th Infantry. He was killed in action while acting as a company runner by bursting shrapnel, on November 1, 1918, at Verdun. He was the only Bristol boy to receive the Distinguished Service Cross which was awarded after his death.

The services at the Delker funeral will be conducted by the Rev. Henry M. Hartmann, pastor of Presbyterian church. They will be held at the home of the parents of the deceased at about three o'clock. They will follow the burial of Watkins.

Among the organizations in addition to the Legion invited to attend the Delker funeral are the following: Mohican Tribe, No. 127, I. O. R. M.; Fidelity Council, No. 21, Fraternal Patriotic Americans, America Hose, Hook & Ladder Co., No. 2; Enterprise Lodge, No. 75, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and members of Bristol police department.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Bracken Post will entertain the 18th Infantry Band, from Camp Dix of 27 pieces and the ex-service men at dinner in the Elks Home at the conclusion of the two funerals. The band will be served with luncheon upon their arrival in Bristol at 11.45 at the residence of Robert Clark, Wood and Market streets.

Every resident of Bristol is requested to display the American flag at half staff on Sunday, as these are the two last funerals to be held and as one of the boys was the recipient of the Distinguished Service Cross. It is hoped that all will comply with the request.

Ten soldiers will have been given military funerals after the two of next Sunday are buried here. Five of the boys who were killed over seas will not be buried in this country, owing to the requests of their nearest kin who desired that their bodies remain where originally placed.

These are as follows: Giovanni Angellio, Earl Robert Marsh, Bernard McIlvaine, Charles Stream, Rocco Scandola. All requests for return of bodies to the United States had to be submitted to the government authorities on or before September 15th. It is believed that all local bodies have been returned which are to be brought back to this country.

The Bracken Post desires to express thanks and appreciation to O'Donnell Brothers, coal dealers of Bath street, who have so generously loaned the use of their four horses for every funeral with but one exception.

Irish Peace Conference Halts Its Deliberations Suddenly

BY DANIEL O'CONNELL

Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The gravest crisis of the Irish peace situation was reached this afternoon when the peace conference suddenly adjourned and Michael Collins, the outstanding figure of the Sinn Fein delegation threatened to withdraw.

The crisis had been precipitated by Premier Lloyd George, who asked the Sinn Fein delegates whether they would consent to a continuation of the deliberations upon the basis of Ireland remaining a part of the British Empire.

Upon the Sinn Feiners' answer depended whether or not the parley would continue.

When adjournment was taken shortly after 1 o'clock Collins was apparently angry.

"Will the parley continue?" he was asked.

"We are not coming back" snapped the commander in chief of the Irish Republican army. Before he could say any more Arthur Griffith, head of the Sinn Fein delegation broke in: "Well, we are coming back at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Meeting to be Called Soon and
All Societies to be Consolidated

TO HALT DUPLICATION

Central Unit Will Tend to Efficiency And Greatly
Aid Such Work

Preliminary steps to the formation of a central charity organization in Bristol are now being taken. When these first steps have been completed a meeting of representatives of the various organizations and societies, which aid the poor and destitute, along with the heads of the churches is to be called and one central organization formed which it is proposed to have distribute all charity in Bristol.

After this central organization gets under working way it is proposed to have it handle all charity locally and thus eliminate duplication and this organization raise all funds for charitable purposes in Bristol.

Under the direction of the Civilian Relief and the Red Cross in Bristol charity work has been carried on for the past year and at the present time the work has become too burdensome for this one branch of the Red Cross to carry. There are indications that this work will increase even more during the winter.

Under the direction of the Civilian Relief a corps of workers has been formed which is making a comprehensive survey of conditions in Bristol. These workers are investigating the conditions in every family in town. Each is being listed. The number of persons there are in each family, the number working and whether or not they are tenants or reside in property which they own. This information is confidential and will be of much value to the new organization when formed.

Those directing the work in the various wards along with their assistants are as follows:

First ward—Mrs. H. Lemuel Jarvis, assisted by Mrs. Walter F. Leedom, Mrs. William P. Betz and Mrs. Samuel A. Pearson.

Second ward—Mrs. Maud Morris, assisted by Mrs. William E. Dodds, Miss Louise Swain and Miss Mary Swain. Third ward—Mrs. Frederick Leibfried, assisted by Miss Beatrice Bracken and Miss Emily Bracken.

Fourth ward—Mrs. Harry Pope, assisted by Mrs. Roy Tracy, Mrs. Robert Rue, Mrs. Arthur Grimeshaw, Mrs. Joseph Foster, Miss Mark Wilkinson, Miss Grace Herron, Miss Etta Herron, Miss Hester Boyle, Miss Nellie Harkins and Miss Gaffney.

Fifth ward—Mrs. J. B. Johnson, assisted by Mrs. S. P. Landreth, Mrs. Annie Groom, the Rev. N. Caterino, John Pone and Miss Laurie Gillick.

Many Attend Dance

Knights of Columbus dance held last night in St. Mark's hall proved a delightful social function. The affair was attended by about 150 people who spent a pleasant evening in dancing and social intercourse. Della's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion.

COMFORTABLE LIVING ON FARM

The successful proprietary farmer of a dozen or more prosperous agricultural States is too well contented with his comparatively easy lot to be enchanted into dissatisfaction by the glowing lights and extravagant luxury of the city.

The assiduous labor which disciplined his active judgment and taught him practical wisdom made a philosopher of him. Ripe discernment leads him to the conviction that there is more glory in the vermilion sky at dawn, more gratification to the sweet aroma of the dew-freshened soil, and keener delight in the melody of singing foliage and caroling birds than there is in the artificial magnificence and enjoyments of the city.

The land is his. The crops that grow on it are his, and so are the animals, seen and unseen, which live on it. The exquisite harmony of nature is as much his own as the material things. He has the pleasure of seeing seeds born to life in the earth, and being the agent of renewing many vital forms over and over again with the changing seasons.

In these prosperous agricultural States the hardships which the pioneers and their successors underwent are no longer encountered. The houses are commodious and equipped with all, or nearly all, the conveniences of city homes. There are good district schools, and not far distant are colleges and universities. The thriving town of 20,000 to 50,000, may be 100,000, inhabitants, which is the commercial center of the district, is quickly and easily accessible over good roads, by automobile, and it has attractive photoplay theatres.

The successful farmer not only lives in comfort, with adequate facilities for social pastime and educational interest, but he is free. It is not surprising that his attachment to the country is staunch and ardent.

When we become dejected over the concentration of population in the cities, the successful farmer of any of the prosperous agricultural States stands out and revives our hope in the back-to-the-farm movement. Many thousands of persons would prefer to live on the farm, if they could be made to realize that they would be more independent there and the opportunities to set aside a competence are greater in the country than in the city.

The thing to do is to provide farming districts with such living conveniences as are available in developed regions. This is one of the means of quickening interest in farm life.

PUBLIC PAYS ALL FIRE LOSSES

By proclamation of President Harding this is Fire Prevention Week. Selfishly and unselfishly the foremost insurance companies are conducting a strenuous campaign to reduce the number of fires and the mortalities and losses of fires. As it is an educational campaign, the press is the principal spokesman.

Tenants, property owners, manufacturers and business men seldom explore this subject far enough to startle themselves with the unquestionable conclusion that it is they who pay the fire losses and they who cause the losses which they must themselves pay. This argument should be the most impressive in favor of precautions against fire.

ment should be the most impressive in favor of precautions against fire.

Total losses from fire approximate $365,000,000 a year in the United States. Seventy-five per cent., or three-fourths, of them are preventable. This is saying that losses of virtually $275,000,000 are due to carelessness and indifference, and could be averted with a little vigilance.

No argument is needed to show convincingly that the insurance companies must derive the revenue for running their business and paying the losses from the premiums which they collect. The rates of the premiums are regulated by the fire losses, going up or down correspondingly to the cost of property destruction. Does this illustration not make it clear enough that the public itself is the victim of conflagrations?

Fire Prevention Week concerns everybody. Give some attention to preventing fires, and help to reduce the property losses and mortalities.

BE CAUTIOUS INVESTING MONEY

At an auction sale in an Illinois county-seat to close an estate, mining stocks and claims which the deceased owner had appraised at a value of $350,000 were disposed of for $5.10. The star of luck may be imperceptibly water-marked in some of this worthless paper, but the chances rather are that the price paid was more than reasonable.

A large cooperative concern, organized as a common-law trust, and capitalized at several millions of dollars, has just gone into bankruptcy. Under this special common-law trust, three men had sole control of all the money subscribed, of all the properties, and of the management of the business, and, as their only liability was in the criminal court, shareholders could not forcefully question their honesty or efficiency. Thousands of persons, mostly women, invested in shares in this trust, notwithstanding that State officers and chambers of commerce had warned them fully and clearly as to their risk.

The foregoing are but commonplace examples of the gullibility of investors in their eagerness to get rich quick or to make larger than ordinary profit on their savings. The rich or fairly well-to-do man can afford to gamble, but the average person who has only a few hundred dollars, or perhaps a few thousand, plays with fickle fate when he lays out his savings in the hope of receiving a fortune.

There are regular and trustworthy establishments which sell securities and it is with them that investors should place their savings. In a game of chance the odds are to lose all.

DEVICES TO MANIPULATE PRICES

Of great public interest is the announcement of the Federal Trade Commission that there are 141 trade associations in the United States which are engaged in the collection and exchange of price information. In plain terms, members of these associations may use this information to hold up prices, or as is sometimes said, to stabilize prices.

Congress should investigate thoroughly the methods of organizations which enable price-fixing. Certain business groups cooperated during the war under the auspices or with the sanction of the Federal Government, and entering into tacit price agreements is now a habit with them. The commission's reports indicate the extent and seriousness of this abuse.

Ford wants Federal judges paid $25,000 to $75,000 annual salaries. Can't they get emolument from football, golf and tennis associations?

The agricultural bloc in the Senate appears to be too hard for the old guards' saw. Evidently it's not wood, but ivory.

The motor tourists do not seem to suffer so much from dusty roads as from dusty throats.

IT'S TIME THE LEAVES BEGAN TO FALL

The Stroller

HUMAN INTEREST ITEMS
GATHERED ABOUT TOWN AND ITS PEOPLE

Job Hedges, one time candidate for governor of New York and who made a stirring address in St. Mark's hall during one of the Liberty Loan campaigns, spoke to the members of the Bucks County Republican Committee in Doylestown Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening addressed the members of the Union League in Philadelphia.

Governor Sproul occupied a front seat and ex-Governor Stuart presided. The speaker said that the United States is suffering more from hypocrisy than from larceny.

"Indolent citizenship is as great a danger to this country as the man who declares he is going to violate the law," he continued. "How are you going to get back to the point where it means something to be an American? The man who will contribute by his presence at a gathering which is hostile to this Government would fire a gun against stability."

"Why is everybody confused today? We are trying to solve all our problems through the head and not through the heart. The heart decides what; the head, how much. We have figured until we have eliminated sentiment. I respect the 14 points, but I believe in the Ten Commandments. We become confused because we fail to remember the three propositions of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Anyone born in this country, who obeys its laws obtains these rights. I don't believe there is any such thing in this country as a right without an obligation. If I enjoy life, liberty and happiness, I am obligated to respect those rights in others."

"What is it that holds this Government together? It's a matter of conscience. This nation didn't go to war until the people became emotional. Let's get back to the old stuff, when we quit kidding ourselves. One of the greatest indoor sports is to be executive chairman of an uplift society. You are not going to suppress un-Americanism. You are going to supplant it. It is a question of elimination, not destruction. We invite people to this country and when they come, we let them alone, and then complain that they do not become Americans. It would help, everytime a man comes here and don't like it, if we compelled him to go back."

Mr. Hedges scorned the tendency of the age to make everybody live up to a certain standard in matters of food, drink, dress and habits of life. He ridiculed the politician who is afraid to express opinions before first finding out that such opinions are going to be popular. He also said that the American people cannot maintain their self-respect and keep out of the affairs of Europe, but at the same time they must themselves decide what they are going to do, and where they are going to do it, without giving up their right of deciding for themselves.

Some people can't see how women could ever have gotten the ballot before they learned to throw a baseball.

People are still arguing about the delay in supplies furnished the government during the war, but apparently the stuffed chairs were all delivered on time.

"It's All Buncombe"—English Agitation
Against Athletics for Girls

By GEORGE C. DIEHL, President A. A. A.

It's all buncombe—the agitation now spreading over England against athletics for girls because of the alleged serious after-effects in childbirth and motherhood. It is true, of course, that many women do have trouble in childbirth, but it is unfair to say that it is because of athletics. Athletic training is ideal for woman; it develops just the muscles of the abdomen and the lower part of the back that she is compelled to use in this crisis.

Overindulgence, overtraining—that is another thing altogether. I do not believe in that. I have fought excesses all my life.

You read more and more of the necessity of resorting to the Caesarian method. It is because so many women have undeveloped muscles of the abdomen and lower part of the back. It is because these women have never been called upon to do any work, to make any effort of their own.

COMMENT ON TIMELY TOPICS

The celebration of Columbus Day does not honor Christopher Columbus, alone; but the spirit of exploration and progress which had built up a nation on the continent he discovered. This is a day on which the New World should consider its own amazing development, and the fields which it has yet to cultivate.

One of the country's greatest needs is for more effective education, just as that is a need of the whole world. If schools are to educate for citizenship, all teachers both in elementary and intermediate schools and in colleges, must be of the highest character and understanding. There things cannot be paid for in coin, but there must be respectable compensation for the work they make possible, unless the world is to repudiate its value. Many of the leading colleges and universities, recognizing that able services cannot be secured without adequate pay, have recently raised large endowment funds, in an effort to allow professors' salaries to have some part in the general rise of wages to meet increased living costs. This increase of salaries must extend throughout the whole educational system if the teaching profession is to be filled with capable men and women.

The report comes from Vassar, the oldest, high standard college for women in the world, that the faculty cannot afford to stay at salaries which the college can afford to pay. The other big colleges conducted their campaigns and increased their salaries a year ago or more. Vassar is the last to come into line.

It is peculiarly appropriate that this pioneer of women's education should have elected Columbus Day for the launching of its appeal. One can scarcely believe, in a time when equal responsibilities of men and women make equally sound education necessary, that 56 years ago, the opening of Vassar College was considered quite as eccentric and dangerous as the famous voyage of Columbus. The value of college education for women, tried out at Vassar, is now generally accepted and should not be diminished by the lack of funds sufficient for salaries.

BY MORRIS

She had come up to the cabin to do the usual last little daily fussing among the ducks and chickens and to bring Peter, if Peter had not gone into town, back with her to Cherry's house. They had all dined in the old Strickland house the night before, and because of a sudden rainfall had decided to spend the night there, too. The Chinese boy who had been helping the sisters with their housecleaning had been persuaded to cook the dinner and get breakfast, and the evening about the old fireplace had been almost too poignantly sweet.

But suddenly, at about ten o'clock, Peter had surprised them all by getting to his feet. He was going up to the cabin, he said—must go, in fact. He would rather walk, please, he told Alix, when she offered to drive him up in the car. Bewildered and a little apprehensive, she let him go. To Cherry, who seemed to feel suddenly sad and uneasy, Alix laughed about it, but she was secretly worried herself, and immediately after breakfast the next morning decided to run up to the cabin in the car and assure herself that everything was right there.

Cherry, who had not slept and who was pale, had come out to the car, her distracted manner increasing Alix's sense that something was gravely amiss. She started on her trip with a heavy heart, but the half-hour's run soothed her in spite of herself, and now she reached the cabin in a much more cheerful mood.

Peter was nowhere about, and as she plunged into the work of house-and farmyard she supposed, without giving the matter a conscious thought, that he had gone to the city.

"Where Mr. Peter Go Now?" She Asked.

"Mis' Peter not go train," Kow announced presently.

All Alix's vague suspicions awakened.

"Not go train?" she asked with a premonitory pang.

Kow made a large gesture, as indicating affairs disorganized.

"Him no go to bed," he further stated. "Boss come late. He walkin' on porch."

"He came in late and walked on the porch!" Alix echoed in a low tone, as if to herself.

"Where Mr. Peter go now?" she asked. "He have some coffee?"

"No eat," the boy answered. He indicated the direction of the creek, and after a while Alix, with an icy heart, went to the bridge and the pool where Peter had first found Cherry only a few weeks ago.

He was standing, staring vaguely at the low and rising stream, and Alix felt a great pang of pity when she saw him. He came to her smiling, but as Cherry had smiled, with a wan and ghastly face.

"Peter, you're not well?" Alix said.

"I think—I am a little upset," he answered. They walked back to the house together. Alix ordered him to take a hot bath, and made him drink some coffee, when, refreshed and grateful, he came out to the porch half an hour later. They shared the little meal that was her luncheon and his breakfast.

He followed her to the car and got in the front seat beside her.

"You're awfully good to me," he said, briefly, when they were going down the long grade.

Alix did not answer immediately and still in silence began the climb toward the old house. The roads were all narrow here, but she could have followed them in the dark, he knew, and he understood that it was not her driving that made her face so thoughtful and kept her eyes from meeting his.

"You say I'm good to you, Pete," she surprised him by saying suddenly. "I hope I am. For you've been very good to me, my dear. There's only one thing in life that I haven't got, and want. And that you can't, unfortunately, get for me."

He had flushed darkly, and he spoke with a little effort. "I'd like to try!"

She ignored the invitation for a few minutes, and for an instant of panic he thought he saw her lip tremble. But when she turned to him, it was with her usual smile.

"It's only that I would like to have you—and—and Martin—and Cherry as happy as I am!" she said quickly. And a second later the mood was gone as she turned the car in at the home gate and exclaimed, "There's Cherry now!" "Martin's somewhere about," Cherry said as Peter joined her, and Alix stopped the car within conversational range.

Alix remarking that she would turn the car so that she might later start on the grade, disappeared, and the two were together again, after what a night—and what a day!—and that was all that mattered. They spoke confusedly, in brief monosyllables, and were silent, their eyes meeting only furtively and briefly.

"Can you walk up to the cabin with me?" Peter asked. "I want so much to speak to you. Everything's all arranged for tomorrow. All you have to think of is yourself. Now, in case of missing the boat again—which isn't conceivable, but we must be ready for anything—I shall go straight to the club. You must telephone me there. Just go off tonight quietly, get as much sleep as you can, and keep your wits about you."

"Tell me our plans again," Cherry faltered.

"It's perfectly simple," he said, giving her anxious face a concerned glance. "You are going to the Olivers'. I go in, in the morning, to get your suitcase and my own and get to the boat. I shall be there at half-past ten. You get there before eleven—you won't see me. But go straight on board and ask for Mrs. Joyce's cabin. Wait for me there!"

"But—but suppose you don't come!"

Urges Mail Boxes and House Numbering to Speed Up Mail

Postmaster John A. McGinley Makes Suggestions to Bristol Residents, and Tells How To Aid Mail Carriers.

"If expeditious and efficient city delivery service is to be accorded in Bristol, it is essential that all buildings to which mail is delivered, be properly numbered and equipped with private mail receptacles. Without house receptacles for mail, carriers are delayed in serving their mail to other patrons," said Postmaster John A. McGinley, today.

"To correct this evil it has been decided to conduct a city wide campaign, with a view of having every building equipped with a suitable mail receptacle, or opening in the door.

"The Post Office Department earnestly requests the residents of Bristol, to cooperate with their Government, in providing a more efficient and economical mail service. Every citizen or householder in this city, can be of assistance in this cause, by providing a suitable mail receptacle at their residence, where mail may be delivered immediately, without the carrier waiting for some person to come to the door for the same. No particular style or type of receptacle is required by the Post Office Department. It may consist of either a slot in the door, or a conveniently located box, of any suitable material."

Then Mr. McGinley continued by saying:

"Mail receptacles insure the prompt and safe delivery of mail in the absence of the occupants. Avoid delay of mail through return to office because of absence of occupants or delay in answering carriers ring. Obviate the necessity of patrons responding to the bell at inconvenient moments. Expedite the service generally and permit more deliveries, especially to patrons residing near the end of a route. The practice of placing mail in vestibules, under doors, on window sills and etc., where it is exposed to theft and the elements, is hazardous and frequently results in the loss of highly valuable or important mail.

"It is the earnest request of this office, that every householder and building occupant will at the very earliest of their convenience, install or equip their residence or building with a mail receptacle, that will prevent a letter carrier waiting, and wasting valuable time."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Young Muffo To Fight Johnson

Bristol Boy to Clash Monday Night With Battling Syracuse Boy

GOOD FIGHT EXPECTED

Eddie (Young) Muffo, the Bristol lightweight, will clash next Monday night at the Arena, in Trenton, with Battling Johnson, formerly of Syracuse, now a resident of Jersey's capital. The bout, which is regarded in Trenton as one of the most promising that has been arranged for the club, will be over the ten round route.

This bout will mark Muffo's first ring engagement since he boxed Pete Hartley, of New York, 12 hard rounds, at the same club a month or more ago. While Hartley, regarded as one of the best lightweights in the country, won the newspaper decision over the Bristol boy, he was unable to do what he predicted, namely to stop him. Muffo, as a matter of fact, gave Hartley the fight of his career and the local youngster was deserving of all kinds of credit for his splendid showing against the experienced New Yorker. Hartley only recently fought Willie Jackson 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden.

In Battling Johnson, Muffo goes against a boy of his own type—a willing mixer and consequently the bout promises to prove of a tempestuous nature. It is such matches as this that gives the fans the thrills that makes boxing such a popular sport.

Bristol fans will likely attend the match in large numbers. Muffo is being recognized here as a likely prospect for high ring honors and if he can dispose of Johnson he is promised matches with other high class boys by the Trenton matchmaker. The fact that Muffo has been outpointed in Trenton has not served to weaken him as an attraction. On the contrary, Trenton fans do not seem to take any interest in whether or not Eddie is outpointed. They idolize him for his fighting spirit, his willing efforts and his gameness. They also know that Muffo can hit like a trip-hammer and he usually carries plenty of Trenton money whenever he enters the ring.

Battling Johnson recently outpointed Joe Reno in Trenton, due to his aggressive tactics. The Trenton fighter is not one white cleverer than Muffo, but he is a battler from the word go and therefore when he and Muffo begin tossing punches at each other there is likely to be plenty of excitement in the club house.

The management of the Arena has arranged to have the bouts concluded in time for the Bristol fans, who make the trip to Trenton by train, to take a reasonably early train home. It is expected that a large number of Bristol fans will make the trip by automobile.

In Muffo, Bristol has a boxer who ranks with the best in this section of the country. He is not a champion by any means, but when he has worn down the rough edges he promises to make it interesting for any of the boys at 135 pounds. And he is sure to learn the finer points of the manly art for he is just as earnest in boxing as he is in everything else he does.

Frank Manze, Eddie's manager, has brought him along nicely. The match with Pete Hartley taught Muffo more than he could have learned in a gymnasium in a year and he has profited by his experience. Many Trenton fans go even so far as to say that they believe now that he could at least hold the New Yorker to an even break. Perhaps Muffo will get another chance at Hartley after he has cleaned up some of the others in the class.

Tickets for the Muffo-Johnson match will be on sale here at Whyno's and Nocita's, 509 Wood street, or from Frank Manze. The management of the Arena has planned to take care of between 200 and 300 Bristol fans. It looks like a big night for local ring followers and they should turn out and root for Muffo to plant a haymaker on the Trenton battler.

There are other bouts on the program that promise action.

Nation Mourns Death Of Noted Pennsylvania Senator, Knox

tigue from the ocean trip. He plunged into his senatorial work with all his usual vigor, however, and was preparing for the busy sessions ahead when he was stricken at his home last night.

The immediate cause of death was a stroke of apoplexy. Senator Knox had left the capital late in the afternoon, taken a short motor ride and returned to his home in K. street for dinner. While preparing for dinner he was stricken. He died while medical aid was being summoned with only Mrs. Knox and his private secretary present.

In the death of Senator Knox the nation lost one of its most useful public men in the opinion of his colleagues. Senator Knox's counsel and advice had been counted upon for the forthcoming conference on armament and Far Eastern affairs and its loss will be keenly felt. Because of his experience as secretary of state during an interesting period in the national development of the nation and his long experience as a member of the senate foreign relations committee, the Penna. senator was peculiarly well equipped to counsel on international matters.

Secretary of State Hughes, Elihu Root, Senator Lodge and Senator Underwood, the American four, all expressed deepest sorrow today over the untimely passing of Senator Knox.

THEATRES

Forrest Theatre

One of the highest paid actors in the east of the World Film Corporation's feature production, "The Problem Eternal," does nothing more difficult than to give a perfect impersonation of himself throughout the entire picture.

He is Teddy—the famous four-footed, stub-tailed canine luminary of the silver sheet.

Teddy plays the part of Teddy, the little lame dog who brings happiness into the life of the little lame brother of Joe Sands, the hero, played by Joseph Moore, a member of the famous family of "Movie Moores."

Teddy is a picture star of the first magnitude, temperamental like the rest, "I simply can't perform," he barked at a recent interview, "with a fresh cut of 'beefsteak' in my dressing room—to soothe my nerves when I have finished an emotional role. And I can't abide anything 'catty' in the other members of the cast. In fact, if there is anything

"catty" in the whole studio I can't work at all."

"The Problem Eternal" with Teddy, Joe Moore, Eileen Sedgwick and the rest of the cast, will be seen at the Forrest Theatre tonight.
